VIRTUAL MEETING with Live Speaker

6:30 – 8:30 pm Speaker (utilizing GoToWebinar platform)

By 2030, about 1 in 5 adults will be aged 65 and older. Around 60% of this demographic will have some form of periodontal disease. More than 5 million will have Alzheimer's disease. Recent scientific findings have shown that the periodontal pathogen, p. gingivalis can invade and inflame areas of the brain affected by Alzheimer's disease. Other studies have found that people with oral inflammation have increased cognitive decline. This course will examine the emerging evidence linking periodontal health and Alzheimer's disease.
